

Congress of the United States

Washington, DC 20510

January 28, 2022

The Honorable Joseph R. Biden, Jr.
President of the United States
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue NW
Washington, DC 20500

Dear President Biden,

We write to renew our call to you to work with Congress to enact a nationwide consumer privacy and data security law this year.

Since we last wrote six months ago, we have neither received a response from you nor seen meaningful activity on the part of the executive branch to protect the data privacy of U.S. consumers. However, we have seen several troubling reports about the myriad ways Americans' personal information is being misused and abused. Recent disturbing revelations about Big Tech companies exploiting the data and online habits of children and teens show just how urgent it is for Congress to act to protect the data privacy of our youth and the broader public.

Today's international commemoration of Data Privacy Day marks an opportunity to commit to doing what more than 100 countries have already done: establish a baseline privacy law in the United States.

This is a national imperative for maintaining a strong and secure digital economy. We hope you will join us in this effort to give Americans more control over their personal information, provide meaningful safeguards over their data, and restore trust in the safety and security of our online ecosystem.

Sincerely,

Roger Wicker
Ranking Member
U.S. Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, & Transportation

Marsha Blackburn
Ranking Member
U.S. Senate Subcommittee on Consumer Protection,
Product Safety, & Data Security

Cathy McMorris Rodgers
Ranking Member
U.S. House Committee on Energy & Commerce

Gus M. Bilirakis
Ranking Member
U.S. House Subcommittee on Consumer Protection
& Commerce